1. "Tom Sachs: Objects of Devotion" at Sperone Westwater

Tom Sachs brings together several recent bodies of work—his DIY takes on the boombox, the space program, and Japanese tea ceremonies (appearing later this month at a survey show at the Nasher Sculpture Center, Dallas)—in a cabinet of curiosities-style show inspired by the European tradition of the wunderkammern. It's one of two exhibitions opening at the gallery that night, the other being "William Wegman: Dressed and Undressed."

257 Bowery, September 5–October 28, 2017; opening reception September 28, 6 p.m.–8 p.m.
